
Grants review 2012–2013

Encouraging progress, development and fresh ideas

Please see our website www.tudortrust.org.uk for more information on our work, and for up-to-date details of the grants we make.

The Tudor Trust

The Tudor Trust is an independent grant-making trust. Most of our grant making is focused on the UK, although we also run a small targeted grants programme promoting ecological agriculture in Zimbabwe, Kenya and Uganda.

In the UK we support work which tries to address the many different needs of people at the margins of our society, funding a wide range of organisations working to build stronger communities.

We concentrate on helping smaller, community-led groups: often charities, although we can fund other types of organisation too including constituted community groups and community interest companies.

Tudor has been making grants since 1955 and our trustees' approach to grant making has changed over time. In recent years we have moved away from setting our own funding priorities in favour of supporting what applicants themselves identify as most important. This change of approach means that applicants don't need to design their application to match our priorities but can apply for what they really want.

This often means that our grants go towards things like salaries and the other core running costs of an organisation – though this is not always the case, as you will see from our grants list.

Our approach to funding

We don't try to advance a particular agenda through our grant making as we think that groups working on the ground have the knowledge and experience to identify problems and develop solutions which meet the real needs of the people they work with. So whilst we still have a few exclusions – types of work we don't fund – our funding guidelines are designed to be flexible and open, simply identifying some 'key characteristics' we are looking for in the groups we support. These include:

- Organisations working directly with people who are at the margins of society
- A focus on building stronger communities by overcoming isolation and fragmentation and encouraging inclusion, connection and integration
- Organisations which are embedded in and have developed out of their community – whether the local area or a 'community of interest'
- High levels of user involvement, and an emphasis on self-help where this is appropriate
- Work which addresses complex and multi-stranded problems in unusual or imaginative ways
- Organisations which are thoughtful in their use of resources and which foster community resilience in the face of environmental, economic or social change

Our ultimate beneficiaries are the thousands of people that the groups we fund support, rather than the groups themselves. We aim to make the best use of our resources by making grants to well-run, forward-looking grassroots groups which are closely in touch with the people they are working with, and which have a clear sense of the difference they want to make.

We want to be a helpful and flexible funder, making grants in a responsive, imaginative and straightforward way. A key element of our approach is that we don't just offer financial support: we engage with our grant holders in other ways too, offering advice and development support where this is needed and working to build a funding relationship which is based on honesty and trust.

Grants review

This review aims to give you an insight into the detail of our grant making last year – how many grants did we make? what do our grants go towards? how long do they run for? – alongside an overview of all the grants we made. Our hope is that this will give you a good idea both of the kind of organisations and projects Tudor supports and of how we make our grants.

The grants list also gives a sense of the strength and diversity of the UK's voluntary and community sector, notwithstanding the challenges it is currently facing. We are proud to support so many committed, effective and enthusiastic organisations.

The information in this grants review expands on information contained in Tudor's full annual report and accounts for 2012-2013, which are independently audited. The annual report and accounts will give you a wider perspective on our work over the year, and can be read alongside this document. You can download a copy from our website www.tudortrust.org.uk or, if you'd like a hard copy, please contact our office.

Tudor's funding guidelines are also on our website. The guidelines explain what we are looking for in the organisations we support and give full details of how to apply. If you are thinking of making an application please read the guidelines carefully first.

If you have any questions about our grants which aren't answered in this review please do get in touch. You can call us on 020 7727 8522.

Applications in 2012-2013

We received 2,756 applications for funding in 2012-2013, down 9% on the previous year.

Most of the applications we received – just over 95% – were eligible under our guidelines. This high level of eligible applications is due to the open nature of our funding guidelines which are designed to allow groups to apply for funding which meets their specific priorities.

One in eight (13%) of eligible applications received a grant this year – slightly more than the 1 in 10 figure quoted in our guidelines. Our flexible guidelines mean that we receive many more applications than we can ever fund and inevitably this leads to disappointment for many applicants seeking funding for vital and valuable work. We have therefore tried to make sure that our application process is simple and straightforward, using a two-stage process to keep the time and resources groups have to dedicate to completing their application to us to a minimum.

On average it took 18 days for us to give applicants a decision on their first-stage proposal.

For those applications which reached the second stage, it took us on average 111 days (around 3½ months) to reach a final decision on a grant. This is from the date that the application was first received. 96% of applications which went to second stage and progressed to Grants Committee for discussion by trustees received a grant.

Average grant	£51,054	£54,448

We made 342 grants totalling £17.5 million in 2012-2013.

The average grant was £51,054 – a slight decrease on last year. However if we discount the 42 smaller-scale staff grants, development grants and one-off winter grants made over the year we reach a more representative average grant figure of £57,630. We explain a bit more about these smaller-scale grants later on in the grants list.

However we suggest that applicants don't refer to our average grant size when framing their request: we are keen to support what groups most need and so the average grant size is largely irrelevant in practical terms. Applicants tend to find it more useful to look at our grants lists (posted every three months on our website) to get a sense of the range and level of grants we make. The chart overleaf shows the profile of the grants we made by size.

We made one unusually large grant in 2012-2013 with a £300,000 commitment to Thinking Differently, a £1.3 million funding partnership working to reduce alcohol harm among young people in Scotland. The other members of the partnership are the Robertson Trust, Comic Relief, Children in Need, the Joseph Rowntree Trust and the Scottish Government.

By value, 82% of our grants went towards core funding, 14% towards specific projects and just under 4% towards capital projects. Looking just at our revenue grants 85% of our grants by value went towards core organisational costs – things like key salaries and general running costs.

Grants to new organisations

- Continuation funding
- Never funded before
- Funded in the past
- Already holding a grant from us

32%

32% of our grants went to groups we have never funded before.

In 2012-2013 32% of our grants went to organisations which we had never funded before; 32% were for continuation funding (so followed straight on from a previous grant); 27% went to organisations which we have funded at some point in the past and 9% went to organisations which were already holding another grant from us.

33% of the revenue grants made in 2012-2013 were made over three years, 41% for two years and 19% over one year.

Of our three year grants, 40% went to groups we hadn't funded before.

44% of the two year grants made over the year followed straight on from a previous grant, usually itself made over two or three years. This means that we often fund for a longer period than might be immediately apparent from our grants list.

The geographical distribution of our grants is shown in the table above. Tudor is a responsive funder, making grants on the basis of the applications we receive irrespective of where they come from. However, we do keep an eye on where our grants are going and if we feel we are not receiving enough applications from a particular area we try to make sure that potential applicants have heard of us and understand what we might offer. We do this by attending funding events, where we can meet local groups, and by talking to the local infrastructure bodies and funding advisers which support voluntary and community groups in their fundraising.

Engagement with applicants and grant holders

Over the year Tudor's Grants Team managed a portfolio of just under 900 'active' grants, dealing with the day-to-day requirements of developing new applications, responding to reports and making payments as well as providing support where needed around a range of issues including governance, organisational development, recruitment, financial issues and evaluation. In 2012-2013 there was a marked increase in the depth and extent of support required from our grants managers across the portfolio as a whole as organisations approached us about a wide range of issues, many stemming from the uncertain financial climate they are operating within.

We appreciate the value of face-to-face contact so try and visit as many applicants and grant holders as we can, although this can be challenging as we are a national funder with a relatively small staff team. In 2012-2013 we made 71 assessment visits: where we can't visit we rely on a telephone assessment to help us develop the second-stage application. We also made 82 monitoring and exploratory visits and held 123 meetings with applicants and grant holders at our offices.

The organisations we supported in 2012-2013

Tudor has a particular interest in supporting smaller-scale organisations, so we monitor the size of the organisations we fund, using their annual expenditure as an indicator. In 2012-2013 34% of our grants went to organisations with a turnover of less than £100,000. A full breakdown of the grants we made to organisations of different sizes is given overleaf: this analysis does not include staff grants or development grants.

Tudor has a longstanding interest in supporting grassroots community activity and work which helps to develop and maintain the stability and resilience of local communities. For instance in 2012-2013 27% of our grants provided support to organisations such as local community centres and resource centres, community development groups, community gardens and green spaces and neighbourhood forums.

Alongside this we also support organisations which address marginalisation and disadvantage in a more targeted way: for example in 2012-2013 8% of our grants went to groups working with people with experience of the criminal justice system, 7% to groups working in the field of mental health, 6% towards work with a homelessness focus and 5% to groups working with people with disabilities.

We also monitor the proportion of our grants going towards targeted work with BME communities, or to BME-led groups. In 2012-2013 14% of our grants went towards work with this specific BME focus.

UK grants

This section of the grants list covers most of our grants made within the UK: primarily grants made in response to applications put forward under our funding guidelines but also development grants – small grants up to a maximum of £7,500 intended to help a group strengthen and develop a particular aspect of their organisation. Development grants are made in response to a need identified by a grants manager in discussion with an organisation: usually a grant holder, but occasionally an applicant. Fourteen UK development grants were made in 2012-2013.

Overseas grants

Although Tudor is primarily a UK funder we do make a number of grants in Africa each year. Tudor's Africa Group – a small special interest group made up of trustees and staff – runs a targeted programme promoting ecological agriculture in Zimbabwe, Kenya and Uganda. This is a proactive funding programme and we don't consider unsolicited applications.

Through the group Tudor supports farmer-to-farmer learning initiatives which are cost effective and scalable and also build knowledge and expertise. Tudor also funds centres that can demonstrate agro-ecological approaches and act as informal, and sometimes formal, teaching establishments. We encourage peer-to-peer learning between organisations through exchange visits and hold a biennial conference in Africa. Our ultimate aim is strengthening the voice of the smallholder farmer – this resonates with our work in the UK which focuses on supporting marginalised communities.

In 2012-2013 Tudor also made a small number of grants towards work overseas that doesn't sit within the Africa Group's remit. These include grants towards a rammed earth school building in Kenya, to be built in memory of Similola Towry-Coker, Tudor's much-loved Africa and UK Grants Manager who died in 2010, and grants to the Jubilee Debt Campaign and the Green Belt Movement. Tudor has strong historical links with both of these organisations.

Winter grants

During 2012-2013 Tudor's Sustainability Group investigated the issue of food poverty and how Tudor might best engage with this increasing problem. The full Board discussed the issue in late November and decided that we should initiate a short-term, immediate response to food poverty while the Sustainability Group continued to focus on a more strategic, longer-term response.

It was decided that the quickest and most effective way to respond would be to direct small additional grants towards groups which we were already funding and which we knew were providing food to their service users. This approach didn't require any 'new' due diligence, allowing us to get the grants out as quickly as possible so that groups could use them in the run up to Christmas, as well as over the rest of the winter. In December 12 'winter grants' of £5,000 were made to organisations working with a wide range of beneficiaries, including people living in poverty in disadvantaged areas, homeless people and refugees and asylum seekers.

Staff grants

Each year, every member of Tudor’s staff team is given the opportunity to nominate a charitable organisation to receive a grant of up to £2,000 from the Trust. Staff grants don’t have to be a close fit with our guidelines but rather reflect staff interests. The £2,000 can be granted to one organisation, or sometimes staff prefer to split the money into two grants of £1,000. In some cases staff members combine their staff grants to create one more substantial grant.
