change in communities

The Tudor Trust

The Tudor Trust is an independent grant-making trust. Most of our grant making is focused on the UK, although we also run a small targeted grants programme promoting ecological agriculture in Zimbabwe, Kenya and Uganda.

In the UK we support work that tries to address the many different needs of people at the margins of our society, funding a wide range of organisations which support positive change in communities. We aim to respond to the needs identified by our applicants and to provide some of the resources they need to achieve their aims and make a difference within their communities.

We focus on supporting smaller groups which are embedded in their communities: many of these are charities, but we can also fund other types of organisations including constituted community groups and community interest companies as long as the work we are supporting has a clearly identifiable charitable purpose.

Tudor has been making grants since 1955 and our trustees' approach to grant making has developed over this time. In recent years we have moved away from setting our own funding priorities in favour of supporting what our applicants themselves identify as most important. This means that applicants don't need to design their application to fit our priorities but can instead apply for what their organisation really wants.

Because we respond directly to the priorities identified by our applicants many of our grants go towards things like salaries and the other core running costs of an organisation – the kind of funding it can be particularly challenging to secure.

Our approach to funding

We don't have specific funding programmes designed to advance any particular agenda as we think that groups working on the ground are best placed to identify challenges and develop solutions which meet the real needs of the people they work with. So while we have a few exclusions – types of work we don't fund – our funding guidelines for 2015–2016 were designed to be flexible and open, simply identifying some of the 'key characteristics' we were looking for in the groups we fund. These include:

- Organisations working directly with people who are at the margins of society
- A focus on building stronger communities by overcoming isolation and fragmentation and encouraging inclusion, connection and integration
- Organisations which are embedded in their community and which can identify and channel the potential within that community – whether the local area or a 'community of interest'
- Organisations which can demonstrate that they listen to and are responsive to their users
- Organisations which are thoughtful in their use of resources and which foster community resilience in the face of environmental, economic or social change

Tudor's trustees are particularly interested in supported smaller, under-resourced organisations: in our experience smaller organisations are particularly well-placed to deliver positive change because they know their communities and can be highly responsive to need, providing an individualised and holistic response to the people they support. While we say in our guidelines that we are most likely to fund groups with an annual income of less than £1 million in practice the majority of the organisations we support are smaller than this: in 2015–2016 78% of our grants went to groups with an annual income of less than £500,000.

We want to be a helpful and flexible funder, making grants in a responsive, imaginative and straightforward way. A key element of our approach is that we don't just offer financial support: we engage with our grant holders in other ways too, offering advice and development support where this is needed and working to build a funding relationship which is based on openness and trust.

Grants review

Over the year Tudor made grants supporting a wide range of work which met our overarching aim of addressing the multiple needs of people at the margins of society. This review document provides information about all the grants we made last year alongside a more detailed analysis of applications received and grants made. We hope that this will give you a good idea both of the kind of organisations and work Tudor supports and of our approach to grant making.

Austerity policies have put communities and the organisations working within them under huge pressure. Many organisations have seen their funding reduce as need and demand has increased. However the grants list shows that, despite the many challenges it is currently facing, the UK voluntary and community sector remains both strong and diverse. It is good to know that there are so many committed, effective and resourceful organisations working within marginalised communities around the UK.

The information in this grants review expands on information contained in Tudor's full annual report and accounts for 2015–2016, which are independently audited. The annual report and accounts will give you a wider perspective on our work over the year, beyond our grant making. You can download a copy from our website www.tudortrust.org.uk or, if you'd like a hard copy, please contact our office.

Tudor's funding guidelines for 2016–2017 are also on our website. Last year trustees and staff revisited Tudor's funding guidelines, as part of a wider Review process, with the aim of clarifying the trust's main areas of interest. While the overall tenor of our grant making – generalist, responsive, trusting and flexible – will remain unchanged, we decided that it would be helpful to applicants to reinforce our commitment to funding work with the most marginalised communities. Our new funding guidelines for 2016–2017 therefore stress our interest in supporting work which addresses marginalisation, as our applicants choose to define it, while also explaining how this sits alongside the other key characteristics and qualities we look for in the organisations we fund.

Applications in 2015–2016

We received 2,931 applications for funding in 2015–2016, just a 2% increase on the previous year.

98% of the applications we received were eligible under our guidelines. This high level of eligibility is due to the open nature of our funding guidelines. These are designed to allow groups to apply for funding which meets their particular priorities.

Around one in nine of eligible applications received a grant this year. Our flexible guidelines mean that we receive many more applications than we can ever fund and inevitably this leads to disappointment for many applicants seeking funding for vital and valuable work. We have therefore tried to make sure that our application process is simple and straightforward, using a two-stage process to keep the time and resources groups have to dedicate to completing their application to a minimum.

On average it took 21 days for us to give applicants a decision on their first-stage proposal.

For those applications which reached the second stage, it took us on average 100 days (just under 3½ months) to reach a final decision on a grant. This is from the date that the application was first received. 98% of applications which went through to second stage and which progressed to Grants Committee for discussion by trustees received a grant.

Grants made in 2015–2016

	2015–2016	2014–2015
Number of applications	2,931	2,864
Number of eligible applications	2,868	2,810
Applications presented to committee	369	300
Number of grants	361	294
Total amount committed	£18,271,500	£17,195,248
Average grant	£50,614	£58,487

We made 361 grants totalling £18.3 million in 2015–2016.

The average grant was £50,614 – a significant decrease on last year. However if we discount the 39 smaller-scale staff grants, development grants and Africa Group capacity-building grants made over the year we reach a more representative average grant figure of £56,446. We explain a bit more about these smaller-scale grants later on in the grants list.

We suggest that applicants don't refer to our average grant size when framing their request. We are keen to support what groups actually need so the average grant size is largely irrelevant in practice. Instead we encourage applicants to look at our grants lists (posted every three months on our website) to get a sense of the range and level of grants we make. The chart overleaf shows the profile of the grants made last year by size.

Across all grants made in the year 78% by value went towards core funding, 17% towards specific projects and 5% towards capital projects.

Looking only at revenue grants, 83% of our grants by value went towards core organisational costs – things like key salaries and general running costs.

83%

By value, 83% of our revenue grants went towards core funding.

Grants to new organisations

- Continuation

- Already funding

33%

33% of our grants went to groups we have never funded before.

In 2015–2016 33% of our grants went to organisations which we have never funded before; 42% were for continuation funding (so followed straight on from a previous grant); 23% went to organisations which we have funded at some point in the past and 2% went to organisations which were already holding another grant from us.

29% of the revenue grants made in 2015–2016 were made over three years or longer, 33% for two years and 35% over one year.

Of our three year grants, 39% went to groups we haven't funded before.

51% of the two year grants made over the year followed straight on from a previous grant, usually itself made over two or three years. This means that we often fund for a longer period – perhaps five or six years – than might be immediately obvious through reading our grants list.

Total	361	£18,271,500	100%	NA

This table shows how our grants were distributed by region in 2015–2016. Tudor is a responsive funder, making grants on the basis of the applications we receive irrespective of where they come from. However, we do keep an eye on where our grants are going and if we feel we are not receiving enough applications from a particular area we try to make sure that potential applicants have heard of us and understand what we might offer. We do this by attending funding events, where we can meet local groups, and by talking to the local infrastructure bodies and funding advisers who support voluntary and community groups in their fundraising.

Last year we made more grants than we have in previous years in the East Midlands and Eastern regions: these areas have always been ‘cold spots’ for Tudor, parts of the country where the value of the grants we make is disproportionately low when compared to the population profile. We hope to build on this trend in the future.

The organisations we supported in 2015–2016

Tudor has a particular interest in supporting smaller-scale organisations, so we monitor the size of the organisations we fund, using organisation expenditure as an indicator. In 2015–2016 33% of our grants went to organisations with a turnover of less than £100,000. A full breakdown of the grants we made to organisations of different sizes is given below: this analysis does not include staff grants, development grants or Africa Group capacity building grants.

Tudor has a track record in supporting the kind of grassroots community activity which helps to maintain and develop the stability and resilience of communities while also making life better for local people. In 2015–2016 31% of our grants provided support to organisations such as community centres, community development groups, community food projects, community gardens and growing schemes, green spaces and neighbourhood advice projects.

Engagement with applicants and grant holders

Alongside this we also support organisations which address marginalisation and disadvantage in a more targeted way: for example in 2015–2016 7% of our grants went to groups providing support to refugee and asylum seekers, 6% to groups with a focus on mental health, 6% to groups working with people with disabilities and 5% to groups working in the area of criminal justice.

We also monitor the proportion of our grants going towards targeted work with BME communities, or to BME-led groups. In 2015–2016 15% of our grants went towards work with this specific BME focus.

239 visits and meetings with applicants and grant holders in 2015–2016.

Over the year Tudor’s Grants Team worked with a portfolio of just under 800 ‘active’ grants, developing new applications, responding to reports and making payments as well as providing support where needed around a range of issues including governance, organisational development, recruitment, financial management, funding and evaluation. Over the last few years we have noted an increase in the level and complexity of the grants management required across our portfolio as a whole, and this continued in 2015–2016. Organisations approach us with a wide range of problems and issues, many stemming from the uncertain financial climate they are operating within.

Talking to our applicants and grant holders is one of the best ways for us to gather information, intelligence and learning. We appreciate the value of face-to-face contact so try and visit as many applicants and grant holders as we can, although this can be challenging as we are a national funder with a relatively small staff team. In 2015–2016 we visited 28% of our applicants as part of the assessment process: where we can’t visit we invariably set up a telephone assessment to help us develop the second-stage application. We also made 47 monitoring visits and held 113 meetings with applicants and grant holders at our offices.

UK grants 2015–2016

This section of the grants list covers most of our grants made within the UK: primarily grants made in response to applications made under our funding guidelines but also development grants – small grants up to a maximum of £7,500 intended to help a group strengthen and develop a particular aspect of their organisation. Development grants are made in response to a need identified by an organisation in discussion with their grants manager. Ten UK development grants were made in 2014–2015.

Overseas grants

Although Tudor is primarily a UK funder we do make a number of grants in Africa each year. Tudor's Africa Group – a small special interest group made up of trustees and staff – runs a targeted programme promoting ecological agriculture in Zimbabwe, Kenya and Uganda. This is a proactive funding programme and we don't consider unsolicited applications.

Through the Group Tudor supports farmer-to-farmer learning initiatives, which are cost effective and scalable and also build knowledge and expertise. Tudor also funds centres that can demonstrate agro-ecological approaches and act as informal, and sometimes formal, teaching establishments. We encourage peer-to-peer learning between organisations through exchange visits and hold a biennial conference in Africa. Our ultimate aim is strengthening the voice of the smallholder farmer – this resonates with our work in the UK which focuses on supporting marginalised communities.

In 2015–2016 Tudor also made a small number of grants towards work overseas that sits outside the Africa Group's programme. These include a grant to the New Ventures Fund, based in the United States, to support the work of the Global Alliance for the Future of Food and a grant to the Jubilee Debt Campaign, an organisation which has been supported by Tudor since the 1990s. In late 2015 Tudor's trustees also made an exceptional grant to Women for Women International, towards their work with women refugees in the Kurdistan region of Iraq. This was a gesture of support towards the unfolding refugee crisis, seeking to provide assistance to vulnerable refugees closer to their countries of origin.
